Handicapped students are offered recreation through adapted athletics

KAREN SMITH
Sports Editor

As adapted athletic specialist, Jean Denney is providing many new opportunities for disabled students at WSU. "We're trying to build enthusiasm and to educate (the students) about the possibilities adapted recreation," Denney said.

There are three areas of adapted athletics that Denney has a hand in: credit HPR classes, recreation and intramural sports. Of these, Denney centers her attention on recreation.

"I'm really an adapted recreation specialist," she said. "We (Adapted Athletics and Recreation department) are placing more emphasis on outdoor recreation--camping, canoeing, fishing/skiing, and horseback riding," Denney said.

"I believe it is important for disabled students to be fit and active. They need to be physically fit and they need to develop some activities," she said. "They are just like anybody else, they are just more involved in activities you are, the more important they become."

Intramural programs for disabled students, according to Denney, "include almost all of the things that Ken Knight (director of WSU's Intramural Program) has in his department." The program serves "about 100 kids a year, but we'd like to get more involved."

Denney is responsible for designing and supervising an aquatics program and an outdoor pursuit/adventures program for disabled students, as well as special services for the Office of Handicapped Student Services. In addition, she is an adjunct instructor in the Division of Health, Physical Education and Recreation (HPR). Previously, she taught as a graduate assistant in HPR.

A native of Manhattan, Kansas, Denney is the second in her family to attend WSU. Her position with adapted athletics came rather easily.

"I became interested in the physical education program for credit for disabled students, and asked if I could volunteer my time. I didn't have to. I really liked the kids, and I liked what I was doing. Through that, and the influence of Willie Gayle (another HPR instructor), my interest blossomed."

As Denney moved on in the department, doors began to open for her. "The adapted athletic specialist position was just another door opening at the right time," she said.

"It is an area I'm really interested in, working with the disabled kids. I've been encouraging them to take the regular HPR classes...we had one wheelchair student that took backpacking, and went on the 10 mile hike."

Denney, with her past teaching experience in HPR courses, puts her experience to good use. "There is a lot of education involved with working with the disabled. Our philosophy is normalization--to treat the kids as normal people. But sometimes you have to teach responsibility."

Her relationships with the students provide Denney with the most enjoyment, and she doesn't hesitate to explain.

"I love being one on one and working with small groups. There is so much to teach these kids. I guess I just really like people, and what I do. I don't really consider it work."

Library construction to begin in 'a few weeks'

PHILIP E. L. GREENE
Staff Writer

The long-awaited extension to WSU library will soon be a reality, according to university engineer, Nicholas J. Corbo. The contractors will be moving in their equipment trailer in a few days, Corbo said, and construction is due to start in a few weeks.

The successful contractors are J. Davis, general contractor; and City Mechanics, plumb-ing; Fred De Bra, mechanical contractor (heating, ventilation, air conditioning); Chapel Electric, electrical; and Central Fire Protection for fire protection equipment.

All that is left now, according to Corbo, is the fulfillment of paperwork with the state.

The expected occupation date is "roughly the summer of 1988," he said.

"I'm anxiously waiting to get started on it," Corbo said.

Frosh nationwide are more liberal

LOS ANGELES, CA (CPS)--College freshmen generally aim to go into business, harbor a curious blend of liberal and conservative ideologies and may--or may not--be getting as much help from Pell grants as their predecessors of five years ago, a survey of 290,000 students from around the United States says.

Each year, UCLA and the American Council on Education survey entering freshmen and issue reports that in recent years have become the source for most commonly held notions about student attitudes.

This year the study authors were not impressed by their finding that only 16.9% of this year's freshman class received Pell grants, compared to almost a third of the freshman class of 1980.

By contrast, 25.4% of this year's freshmen have Guaranteed Student loans, compared to the 1980 figure of 20.9% of the freshmen.

But the U.S. Department of Education's Bruce Carnes said the statistics are "seriously flawed," and that about 24% of all college students actually receive Pell grants, which, of course, don't have to be repaid.

Carnes added that the Education Dept., which has helped fund the survey "for years and years," has found discrepancies in its financial aid statistics for the past several years.

Study director Professor Alexander Astin's "work is good when it comes to talking about what students think, but when it comes to questions about finances, their parents' income, that's unreliable," Carnes said.

The week before UCLA released its findings, a congressional study found that, because there are fewer Pell Grants available, students who graduated in 1985 were five times more in debt than 1980 graduates.

But Carnes thinks the UCLA study didn't count Pell Grants

Writers' Group provides constructive criticism for WSU authors

By DAVID COBB
Associate Writer

When senior philosophy major Vance Wissinger started the Wright State University Writers' Group, he hoped it would be successful. Now, after a year and a half, Wissinger knows it was worth the effort.

The Writers' Group, which meets twice a month, gives writers positive, constructive criticism on their work from other group members. The group is also planning to organize a weekend workshop, dealing with such topics as critiquing skills, submitting work for publication, and oral presentation of poetry.

"I don't think it's possible to lecture on creative writing," Wissinger said.

The group meets twice a month, on Thursday evenings, from 7 to 10 p.m. The next meeting is to be held on February 5, in 155B University Center.

The meetings are open to anyone who wants to come. One does not need to bring any written material, but it is preferred.

"The nice thing about this group is that we will seriously consider anything someone will bring," said Wissinger. Works range from song lyrics to poems to what Wissinger describes as "a kind of Jewish Science Fiction."

"There is such diversity, it's wonderful," said Wissinger. The members of the group range from ages 18 to 60, with members who have been published to those who have never taken a course in creative writing.

The Writers' Group was started in October of 1985 by Wissinger when he was working as an associate editor for Nexus. "It became apparent to me that there was a void for what the Writers' Group produces." Since its beginning, the group has met at least once a month, and now meets twice a month, with an average turnout of 15 to 20 people per meeting.

"I think creative writing is a crack at it, is good track everyone, because it can't had prove other written once a b tion skills from writing lers ha story to an inter-office te Phy writing a poem or a building ter," Wissinger said. ketbal

Student honored for work with 'special' children

By LOU WILSON
Associate Writer

WSU Senior Special Education major Barbie Haverkos received the 1986 Student of the Year Award from the Ohio

Federation Council for Exceptional Children.

Haverkos' friend, John, presented the award to her on November 14, 1986 in Columbus. "I was very honored by this award," she said. Distri

Prompted by her mother, Haverkos became involved with the Ohio Federation of Children at the age of 16. Haverkos has decided to pursue a profession. Upon graduation in June, she hopes to teach in the Cincinnati area.

"I didn't even think about another career," she said. "I have known what I wanted to do ever since I started with the volunteer program at Camp Stepping Stones."

Camp Stepping Stones is a camp program for the physically handicapped in Hamilton County near Haverkos' home in Milford.

"Involvement in a volunteer program at the age of 16 was hard. I was not familiar with the different types of physical disabilities. I didn't know what to say, the fear of hurting the other person's feelings. I was afraid to touch the physically handicapped because I was afraid I would hurt the person. I was trained in the camp program to enjoy the people, and I liked the feeling of accomplishment gained by helping someone else," she said.

"What I liked best about Camp Stepping Stones was the staff and knowing that I had some very close friends. There were many sad times in my life. The death of a friend from cancer was especially hard to accept. We have other times have been very happy," Haverkos said.

At the age of 16, Haverkos joined the Camp Stepping Stones staff and worked summers as a cabin counselor. Camp Allen Special Services is a residential facility for mentally retarded children and is affiliated with Camp Stepping Stones.

Kortokrax came into the game averaging a bit over 27 points a game, but by the time this Dodge City epic was over, the 6-5 senior would have 34 notches in his jumpshot holster.

The game opened ominously for both squads, as neither could manage to erase the goose eggs off the scoreboard.

With 16:54 to play in the initial stanza, Lenny Lyons opened the scoring with an eight foot jumper, and 20 seconds later Lyons hit again for a 4-0 Raider lead.

Kortokrax scored his first basket with 16:13 left in the half, but a soaring eagle jam by Rodney Webb put the Raiders back up by four points.

The Oilers answered back with ten straight points, eight by Kortokrax, to take a 12-6 lead, and it was off to the...err...horse races.

The Raiders closed the gap down to two points with 7:04 left in the opening stanza, when Webb "sky-hooked" a bucket to squeeze the score down to 16-14 Oilers.

The two teams battled for the remainder of the opening period, but the score was tied 25 all when Henry Grace stepped to the foul line with four seconds left until intermission.

Grace canned one of his two charity attempts to give the Raiders a 26-25 advantage at the half.

The second half opened with the Raiders spreading their lead to four points before the Oilers retook the lead, 33-31, with 17:06 to play.

Lyons put the Raiders back on top with a three-pointer 25 ticks later, but Findlay answered back with a three-pointer of their own, 36-34 Oilers. The Raiders would never again see the lead.

Another Oiler bucket pushed the lead to four points, but Matt Horstman netted two to trim the lead back down to a pair with 15:05 left.

Over the next three minutes, the Oilers scored eight straight points, six by Kortokrax, and the visitors led, 46-36.

A Horstman bucket and a Lyons three-pointer sandwiched around an Oiler hoop pared the lead down to seven points, but again the Oilers answered the call.

With a little over seven minutes remaining, the Oilers had built a 12 point lead, 57-45.

The Raiders, though, refused to die.

Within four minutes of that big Oiler advantage, the Raiders had cut the lead down to four points, 64-60.

After the Oilers converted on one of two free throw attempts, Chris Wampler pulled the coach Marvin Gross said. "But we stayed with the same game plan, took it to 'em and finally broke it open."

The second half was all Wright State, as the Raiders turned up the heat defensively, forcing a game total of 26 Lady Tiger turnovers.

"Pressure defense finally paid off," Gross said. "They threw the ball away a lot in the second half."

The Raiders had four players score in double figures, including Tammy Stover (19), Nettie Carter (16), Janet Emerson (12) and Lois Warburg (11).

Head Coach Pat Davis substituted liberally from the bench, as all but one Raider entered the scoring column.

"We had a pretty consistent game all the way across the board," Gross said. "Pretty much a team effort, which has gotten us to where we are now."

Georgetown, now 6-10, had no one in double figures.

The Raiders have the week off before traveling to Illinois to take on SIU-Edwardsville on Saturday.

EDITORIAL/OPINION

No more 'Ramboys,'
Stop the 'redbaiting'

Dear Editor:

I see the "Amerika uber Alles" gang is back (Jan 21 issue), peddling their jingoistic agitprop and exhorting us to "Kill a Commie for Christ." Long ago I noted those of the right wing are as devoted as any Communists to the idea that the end justifies the means. The Florio/Ousley letter is a particularly repellent example of this devotion (Jim Crabtree's McCarthy-ite redbaiting served as a perversely appropriate footnote).

Only an "anti-communism-at-any-cost" policy could explain their unconscionable libel against Amnesty International, an organization concerned with human rights violations everywhere. The rabid right cares nothing about human rights, though, except insofar as the issue can be used against Communists. Ramboys just wanna kill Commies.

As for the list of supposed Sandinista atrocities, I don't believe a word. It sounds like the lurid fictions Tom Dooley concocted for the CIA (Center for Iniquitous Activities) in Vietnam. I do know Ronald Reagan has tried to blame verified Contra atrocities on the Sandinistas. For propaganda purposes, the Great Prevaricator has also used at least one phony Lenin quote and rearranged the text of an interview with a Sandinista official.

In view of the right wing's observed willingness to tell any lie, and worse, in pursuit of their policies, how can we give any credence at all to their fevered, sanctimonious claims to be pursuing the cause of "freedom and democracy?" How can we believe they care about the Nicaraguan or any Third World people? Those on the right often invoke the Judeo/Christian deity, and even Jesus, but what bloodthirsty god do they really, in effect, worship? The American people should ask themselves these questions and resolutely seek answers to them.

Sincerely,

Edgar J. Lawrence

PRO CONTRA-AID, ANTI CONTRA-AID
PRO CONTRA-AID, ANTI CONTRA-AID
DON'T THESE PEOPLE HAVE A LIFE?!

USA's democracy must help the Contras

Dear Editor:

Please let me respond to Mr. Evan's and Mr. Limouze's (Jan.23) editorials.

I have never said being anti-Contra aid makes one pro-Sandinista. In much the same way, when England asked us for help in their fight against Hitler and we gave them 40 destroyers, if an American said, "Let's not aid England," that would not make that person a Nazi.

However, I would say that person is opposed to helping a friend in dire need and painting too rosy a picture of Hitler, just as the Pledge is doing Ortega a favor by opposing aid to the people who are trying to stop that Communist tyrant.

Simply not aiding the Contras will not make the problem go away. For the Soviets to recall their "advisors" and ask Ortega to give back all those planes and tanks would be to not gain anything from a $2 billion investment in the Soviet goal of world domination. True to Ortega's talk of a "revolution without borders," and the Soviet's talk of, "we will bury you" these two would move on to bigger things. Contras were destroyed.

As far as aiding the Contras leading to Ortega's "increased dependence on the Soviets" you could just as easily say, "Let's not aid England because that might provoke Hitler" or "we close our eyes, Hitler will go away." The liberal philosophy of peace-through-weakness and appeasement has never, and will never, work.

I have never said the absence of Communism means the presence of democracy. However, the presence of Communism always means the absence of civil rights and freedom. Ortega is a Communist. The Contras, a.k.a. The Nicaraguan Democratic Front, are dying to stop Communism, and have turned to us, a democracy, for help.

Cordially,
Scott Ousley

Senior Andy Krieger was the wheelchair basketball Athlete of the Week after he scored 54 points in the final two home games of his college career. He tallied a career-best 30 points in the first win over Edinboro, 60-8. He added 24 points in the second contest for a 60-12 victory over the same opponent. He leads the team in scoring with a 13.4 point per game average.

Dieter

Another freshman, Chris Dieter, was named the men's swimming Athlete of the week following a busy weekend of action. He recorded his best marks of the season in both the 200 breakstroke and the 200 individual medley in the win over Western Kentucky on Saturday. He helped the team to three victories in dual meets last week to raise their record to 6-4.

going to students attending "proprietary schools like Joe's School of Cosmetology."

"We stand by our statistics," replied Dr. Kenneth C. Green, the study's associate director. "We've done validity studies that show students do know the sources of their aid and have a very good sense of parental income."

Green said Carnes' figures "don't reflect the same population of first time and full time college students" that the UCLA survey covers.

"The Department (of Education) has purchased our data for years to use in their own analyses. Their own independent reviews have confirmed our data over the years."

John Skare, executive director of the National Student Roundtable in Washington, D.C. believes the survey is "valid" and that it can be a useful tool. "They've been doing it long enough now, and I have no problem with the methodology."

Carnes isn't sure if the department's arguments with the conclusions about aid will convince it to drop its support of the survey.

"I'm not saying we're not going to fund (the study) again, and I'm not saying we are," he said. "These races aren't fixed."

No one, moreover, has any problem with the survey's other findings.

It found that a greater percentage of freshmen planned to have education and business careers, while fewer freshmen planned careers in computing and health-related fields.

Slightly more students than children and then worked with them as adults. I couldn't have picked a better place to grow up in than at Camp Stepping Stones," she said.

Haverkos was nominated for the state award by the Student Council for Exceptional Children on WSU campus for her many hours of volunteer work on campus and in the greater Dayton area with exceptional children's programs.

Haverkos is the president of the SCEC on campus and politically "conservative" or "far right."

Regardless of what they called themselves, however, large majorities of freshmen supported traditionally liberal positions like abortion rights, school busing for desegregation, a national health care plan and cohabitation prior to marriage.

Haverkos will represent WSU at the state conference of councils for exceptional children in 1987 in Toledo and at the national convention to be held in 1987 in Chicago.

The SCEC on campus is a service organization which helps with projects for other area service organizations that help the gifted and handicapped.

The state CEC award annually goes to a junior or senior special education major at an Ohio college or university who has worked extensively to help gifted and disabled children.
